UPDATED POLICY

March 17, 2020

The latest numbers of confirmed cases of COVID-19 in the State of Colorado, have reached 160. That number doesn't include the many who have not been tested, some with symptoms and some without. Due to this public health emergency and encouragement from officials (organizations like the Department of Regulatory Agencies and the American Counseling Association) for those of us who can work from a distance, to do so, and for people to socially isolate as much as possible, I have decided to conduct all sessions remotely, by using phone + shareable applications, i.e. Google Docs.

Most counselors are moving to this form of practice in the near future if they haven't done so already. I cannot anticipate how long this change may be necessary. Phone counseling is very effective and even if you've never done it before, I feel confident you'll find it useful. I've done many of these kinds of sessions over the years with people locally and globally. All you need to do this career development work with me is a phone, a computer/ tablet, and internet access.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns about this policy change. Please email me back or text before your next appointment, letting me know that you're aware that our next session will be over the phone/ online.

Thank you for understanding this change in our work. Obviously, my preference is to work with individuals in an in-person manner; however, I feel this move is a temporary necessity until we have more information around COVID-19. Above all else, I want to keep all of you and your loved ones safe.

Respectfully,

Brad Graham, M.Ed., LPC
